Sharing our journey to discover the unique libations the world has to offer

We are excited to welcome a new feature to the blog. As we travel the world, we have found many countries or regions with unique local libations. Since we firmly believe in exploring the culture and traditions of where we travel, we purposely seek out these special brews, liquors, and wines. It has made for some memorable and fun experiences.

One of the greatest gifts from our journey to seek traditional libations was the wonderful local people we had the privilege to meet. We found when you show genuine interest; people love to share the history and story of what they are pouring us. More than a few times, they landed opening more bottles and giving us a sample of all the variations they offer.

As we discover new Libations of the World, we will share its story and our experiences. It is a delight for us to look back and relive these lovely finds with our readers.

Do you have unique drinks you have found during your travels you would like to share with us?

“Blessed out those who are curious for they shall have adventures”
